1. Who we are and acceptance

These terms govern your use of ukstats.co.uk, stats.solutions, our live streams, embeds, widgets, API, reports and any related service (together, the "Service"). The Service is provided by UKStats, operated by Marco Mead ("we", "us"). You can contact us at admin@xpre.ai.

By using the Service you agree to these terms. If you do not agree, do not use the Service. If you use the Service for a business, you confirm you can bind that business to these terms.

2. Information only, not advice

The Service republishes statistics, warnings and documents from official publishers, shown as published with their source and dates. It is general information only.

Nothing on the Service is financial, investment, legal, tax, medical, travel, safety, immigration or betting advice, and it must not be relied on as such. Always check the original publisher and take professional advice before making any decision.

3. Accuracy and availability

We do not create or estimate figures, but official publishers can make errors, revise figures or stop publishing. We do not guarantee that any content is accurate, complete, current or fit for any purpose, and we are not responsible for errors made by a publisher.

The Service is provided "as is" and "as available". We may change, suspend or withdraw any part of it at any time, and we do not guarantee it will be uninterrupted, secure or free of errors or viruses.

4. Limitation of liability

To the fullest extent the law allows, we are not liable for any indirect or consequential loss, or for any loss of profit, revenue, business, data, goodwill or opportunity, or for any decision made using the Service.

Our total liability to you for all claims in any 12-month period is limited to the greater of the amount you paid us in that period and £100.

Nothing in these terms limits liability for death or personal injury caused by negligence, for fraud, or for anything that cannot be limited by law. If you are a consumer, your statutory rights are not affected.

5. Third-party content and links

The Service links to and displays material from third parties, including government bodies, international organisations, YouTube, news publishers, sponsors and businesses in our directory. We do not control, endorse or accept responsibility for that material, those websites or their products. Your dealings with any third party are solely between you and them.

6. Sponsors and paid placements

Sponsorship never influences any statistic, ranking or warning. Sponsors are clearly labelled. We may refuse, suspend or remove any sponsor, listing or placement at our discretion, including any in a banned category, and sponsors are responsible for the lawfulness of their own content and offers.

7. Paid digital products

Our reports, rental and white-label products are digital content. Prices are in pounds sterling and shown before you pay. Subscriptions renew automatically each period until cancelled; you can cancel at any time and access continues until the end of the paid period.

If you are a consumer you normally have 14 days to cancel. By asking for immediate access or starting a download you agree that the digital content is supplied straight away and you lose that cancellation right once supply has begun. This does not affect your rights if the content is faulty.

Paid products contain official statistics only and carry the same "information only" terms as the rest of the Service.

8. Accounts and submissions

You are responsible for your account, keeping your login details secure and everything done through it. Information you give us must be true.

If you submit content (for example citizen-journalism applications, directory listings, sponsor material or pages you create), you confirm you own it or have permission, that it is lawful and accurate, and you give us a free, worldwide, non-exclusive licence to host, display, adapt and share it as part of the Service. We may review, refuse, edit or remove any submission without notice.

9. Acceptable use

You must not misuse the Service, including by: breaking any law; scraping or bulk downloading beyond our published API limits; overloading, probing or attacking our systems; reverse engineering our software; impersonating anyone; uploading malware; or presenting our content, presenter or stream in a misleading way, as your own, or as endorsed by us or any government body.

10. AI features

Some features, such as the AI presenter and draft text, use artificial intelligence and are labelled as such. They read from or summarise published content and may contain mistakes. AI output is never a source of figures; the original publisher always is.

11. Intellectual property

Our name, logo, design, software and original text belong to us or our licensors. You may share links and quote small extracts with credit to UKStats. Official data remains subject to its own licence, such as the Open Government Licence, and you must follow that licence and credit the original publisher.

Government logos, crests and the Royal Arms are not licensed for reuse by us.

12. Indemnity

If you use the Service for a business or breach these terms, you agree to compensate us for any claims, losses and reasonable costs (including legal fees) arising from your breach, your content or your misuse of the Service.

13. Suspension and changes

We may suspend or end your access at any time if we reasonably believe you have broken these terms. We may update these terms; the version and effective date at the top show the latest. Continuing to use the Service after a change means you accept it. For paid subscriptions we will give reasonable notice of material changes.

14. General

If any part of these terms is found unenforceable, the rest remains in force. If we delay enforcing a term, we can still enforce it later. These terms are the whole agreement between us about the Service. You may not transfer your rights under them; we may transfer ours to another organisation.

15. Governing law

These terms are governed by the law of England and Wales and the courts of England and Wales have jurisdiction. If you are a consumer living in Scotland or Northern Ireland you may also bring proceedings in your local courts, and you keep any mandatory protections of your local law.
